Overview

What are the benefits of building new hotels in Vanuatu?

One of the positive impacts of building new hotels in Vanuatu is increasing the amount of jobs available for locals. This results in more income for the locals, enabling them to support themselves and their families, as more tourists arrive in the country.

Why is agriculture important to the Vanuatu economy?

According to the Asian Development Bank, agriculture is more important to the Vanuatu economy than it is to any other Pacific economy, since it does not have the mineral and forestry resources of Papua New Guinea or Solomon Islands, the manufacturing base of Fiji, the marine resources of Micronesia, or the remittances of Polynesia.

What is the economy of Vanuatu?

Vanuatu's economy is primarily agricultural; 80% of the population is engaged in agricultural activities that range from subsistence farming to smallholder farming of coconuts and other cash crops. Copra is by far the most important cash crop (making up more than 35% of the country's exports), followed by timber, beef, and cocoa.

What are the livelihood activities in Vanuatu?

In Vanuatu, there are village shops selling essential foods and household items, small businesses providing jobs, small boat services linking people from village to village, and farmers selling their food crops to urban centres. These activities have profound economic implications.
